

Change ain't easy

ויקח ה' אלקים את האדם וינהיגו בגן עדן לעבדה ולשמרה

"G-d took Adam, and placed him in the Garden of Eden, to guard it and guard it"

Hashem wished to place Adam in the perfect spot, so he can learn and give it his best shot
This spot was Gan Eden, but Adam did not want to enter
After much convincing, Adam finally gave in Gan Eden had lots of trees, which bore fruits that were desirable to the eye
Was delicious and plenty of supply
Angels stood by, ready to do Adams bidding on the fly
They strained his wine and roasted his meat
He didn't need to irrigate the garden, prune and grow wheat
Whatever he wished for was right there, ready to eat
Occupying himself with Torah was his only feat! If so, Why all the fuss? Why all the heat?
Why did he not want to enter? Why did he retreat?

The answer is a six letter word called change
When people are comfortable in life, even if it's for the better, they do not want to rearrange
Whether a toddler, who is being toilet trained
Or a teenager, when switching schools is being entertained
Perhaps an adult hesitating to switch car insurance, even though more money he would gain
The fact is, people get so deeply ingrained
In their current situation, they would rather remain
For Adam, Gan Eden was clearly the best place to be
However, because it required change, he needed to be pushed, until finally he did agree
Look, change can be a hard thing, at times, we need a push & some convincing
But know this:
When change is needed, it's not worth dismissing
Because then perhaps you might never find out what you are missing!

To sum this up, here's what's up:
"Change ain't easy" It can get hard but we must know that Hashem, our loving G-d
Truly loves us and for us, wants only the best
We need to do our best to overcome any test
Every morning when your getting dressed
Say Thank you Hashem for another day, I am blessed :)

Sincerely, Nissi
